FOUR CENTURIES LATER -- Golden Hinde II, replica of the galleon with which English voyager Sir Francis Drake circumnavigated the globe nearly 400 years ago, passes under the Golden Gate Bridge to enter San Francisco Bay. The 31-meter-long craft was sailed from Plymouth, England, along the same route followed in 1577-79 by Drake, who was the first white man to explore the California coast. The vessel is to remain as a tourist attraction during the American Bicentennial. (75-909)
