

The President declared that the United States has always been willing to negotiate honorable settlements, but will not engage in appeasement. He called for an "urgent and intense" defense production drive in the United States to meet the Soviet's "evil war by proxy" in Korea. In the background are Vice President Alben W. Barkley (left), President of the U.S. Senate, and Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives.

51-442^o - El Presidente Truman pronunciando su discurso sobre la situación nacional ante el Congreso norteamericano.

C3519F1