

C654 F2

LADY BIRD JOHNSON: WIFE OF AMERICAN VICE PRESIDENT

29 DIC. 1960

Claudia (Lady Bird) Taylor Johnson, wife of the new American Vice President, Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas. Beguiling and efficient, "Lady Bird" makes both the Johnsons' Washington home, and their Texas ranch centers of an abundant hospitality; she maintains a close and congenial relationship with her two teen-age daughters; she has built up and continues to run a very successful radio-television business; and during the campaign she urged the election of Democratic party nominees in appearances before groups in 30 states.

"Lady Bird" and Lyndon Johnson happily acknowledge congratulations on the day he was nominated for the Vice Presidency.

(Photo No. 60-20499. Accompanies Feature F-60-304.)

60-20499

Lyndon B. Johnson: Mrs. Johnson

C654 F2

Claudia (Lady Bird) Taylor Johnson, esposa del nuevo vicepresidente norteamericano, el senador Lyndon B. Johnson, de Tejas, Animada y eficiente, "Lady Bird", hace, tanto de la casa de los Johnson en Washington, como de su rancho de Tejas, centro de espléndida hospitalidad; está muy unida con sus dos hijas; ha montado y sigue dirigiendo una afortunada empresa de radio y televisión, y durante la campaña electoral, apareció abogando por la elección de los candidatos del partido Demócrata, en 30 estados diferentes. "Lady Bird" y Lyndon Johnson, corresponden felices a las felicitaciones que reciben el día en que él fue nombrado candidato a la Vicepresidencia de los Estados Unidos.

LYNDON B. JOHNSON: MRS. JOHNSON

9-16 Lyndon B. Johnson, then Vice President of the United States, and his wife Lady Bird are welcomed home by the late President John F. Kennedy in May, 1961, upon their return from a two-week, 29,000-mile (46,400-kilometer) tour of six Asian countries.

(61-8398)

NOV 28 1963

Lyndon B. Johnson: Mrs