BICENTENNIAL BANDS -- City Hall Plaza in Boston is jammed by an estimated 100,000 persons celebrating Patriots Day and commemorating the 200th anniversary of the beginning of the American Revolutionary War. Highlight of the Bicentennial ceremonies was a concert by some 1,800 musicians from local high schools led by famed Boston Pops Orchestra conductor Arthur Fiedler (center, behind podium). Earlier the bands had marched to the site in a colorful parade through the historic downtown streets of the Massachusetts capital. (75-981-C)
