Abstract

This Final Year Project’s purpose is to estimate the tilt angle of a platform, which has two engines installed above, in order of stabilize it in the angle that the user desires. To estimate the angles a set of sensors called gyroscopes and accelerometers have been used, both of three axis, integrated into a sensor called IMU. The engines have been controlled using a electronic speed controller (ESC), that also serves as a DC/AC converter.