

BICENTENNIAL COINS -- President Gerald Ford receives the first set of newly minted Bicentennial coins from Mary Brooks, director of the U.S. Mint. Also participating in the White House ceremony in Washington was John Warner (right), head of the American Revolutionary Bicentennial Administration. Designs for the quarter dollar, half dollar and dollar were chosen in a national competition. The United States will celebrate its 200th birthday in 1976. (74-2527)
