SUBTERRAINIAN SMITHSONIAN -- The newest addition to the Smithsonian Institution on the Mall in Washington is presented in this striking view. At left foreground is the entrance to the Arthur M. Sackler Gallery which will feature Asian and Near Eastern art works. The entrance to the new National Museum of African Art is at right foreground. In background is "the Castle," which houses the administrative offices of the Smithsonian Institution. At center is a garden complex above the new museums, which extend three floors below ground level and are connected. They are scheduled to open to the public in late September.
