IMPROMPTU GALA -- President and Mrs. Ronald Reagan and Vice President and Mrs. George Bush lead the applause as the 450-member All-American College Band, an honor group formed specifically for the Inauguration, performs in a sports arena in a Maryland suburb of the national capital. When the Inaugural Parade down Washington's Pennsylvania Avenue from the Capitol to the White House was cancelled because of inclement weather, the 11,000 participants were invited to attend the impromptu festivities. "I know you didn't get your chance to salute all of us," the President told the crowd, "but we are here to salute all of you." (85-175-C)
