HALL OF FAME -- Today "The Spirit of St. Louis" soars among other memorabilia in the main lobby of the highly popular new Air and Space Museum in Washington. Orville Wright made the world's first heavier-than-air flight in 1903 with the flimsy craft at left, and below it are Gemini and Apollo space capsules. At right is the sleek X-15 hypersonic research rocket plane. Also displayed are models of the first artificial Earth satellites and deep space probes. (77-1868)
