

C 21546 FL

LUNAR SOUNDER -- One of the new experiments aboard the Apollo-17 command module is the "lunar radar sounder." Drawing shows how electronic beams probe the Moon's surface to a depth of one kilometer. The device, activated by Roland Evans in lunar orbit, is designed to pinpoint sub-surface geological features such as metallic deposits and water. (72-6263-C)

