

C21586 F1

GROUND ACTION -- Engineers at the Goddard Space Center in Maryland watch television monitors showing the capture of the orbiting Solar Max satellite by the 41-C crew using the remote manipulator system arm. The technicians had worked furiously for 36 hours to stabilize Solar Max following astronaut Nelson's abortive attempt at docking. They broke into cheers when the words "O.K., we've got it!" came from the Challenger crew. (84-1615)

C21586 F1

UNITED STATES INFORMATION AGENCY
84-1615

