

GEMINI-10 ASTRONAUTS ABOARD CARRIER -- Gemini-10 astronauts John Young (left) and Michael Collins leave the helicopter that brought them to the deck of the prime recovery ship USS Guadalcanal following their July 21 splashdown in the Atlantic Ocean. The astronauts said of their three-day orbital flight: "We had a lot of fun." They achieved a docking with one Agena target vehicle and a rendezvous with another, carried out a space stand and a space walk, and soared to a new manned altitude record of 760 kilometers above earth.
