

SUIT TESTS -- U.S. astronaut Frank Borman, command pilot for the Gemini-7 spacecraft, watches as technicians test the fittings on his spacesuit before the launching at Cape Kennedy, Florida. Scalp electrodes attached to Borman's head record cerebral activity during the flight to enable doctors to assess his state of alertness, levels of consciousness and depth of sleep. (65-3587)

DEC. - 9 1965