

VIEW FROM COMMAND SHIP -- Television view from the Apollo-14 command ship shows the lunar lander, still encased in the Saturn V rocket's third stage. The round opening at center is the drogue, into which the probe of the command ship fits. Six docking attempts were necessary before the mechanism operated properly.

62355792 (71-847)

