

STROLL IN KANO -- Gemini-5 astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad stroll with their wives down a street in Kano, Nigeria, after calling on Ado Bayero, Emir of Kano, at his palace. Walking in front with the Coopers is Julian Scheer (left), of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in Washington. At right are members of the Emir's palace staff. The U.S. spacemen were in Kano September 28 on the third day of their four-day visit to Nigeria. They also visited the Kano space tracking station, used to monitor space satellites and manned space missions. The astronauts thanked the station staff members for their help during the Gemini-5 orbital flight. (65-3325)
