

SPACE TRAVELERS -- The Skylab-3 crewmen leave their quarters at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida to begin what may become man's longest voyage. They were sent aloft to board the Skylab workshop in Earth orbit. The mission is planned to last up to 84 days. From right front are Commander Gerald Carr, Science pilot Dr. Edward Gibson and Pilot William Pogue. Aides carry air conditioners and other life-support equipment for the spacesuited astronauts.
