

WORLD'S RECORD MARKSMAN -- American marksman John Writer of Chicago, Illinois shows the steadiness of aim that won him a gold medal in the three-position small bore rifle event at the Olympic Games in Munich. He set a new world's record with a score of 1,166 of a possible 2,000 from prone, kneeling and standing positions, breaking the previous record of 1,165 by Oleg Lapkin of Russia in 1969. Below, Writer poses with Silver medal winner Lanny Bassham of the United States (left) and Bronze medal winner Werner Lippoldt of East Germany (right) who scored 1157 and 1153 respectively.
