

SUMMER OLYMPIANS -- Los Angeles was transformed into one giant sports arena as more than 7,000 athletes from 140 countries gathered for the 1984 Summer Olympic Games. The games were spread between several existing, and some new, facilities in the southern California area. The spirit of the American team, which won the most gold medals, is visible in this photo of the U.S. women's 4x100-meter freestyle relay team. Posed before a giant American flag during victory celebrations are, from left; Jenna Johnson, Dara Torres, Carrie Steinseifer and Nancy Hogshead (84-3738-C)
