

SECOND RECORD -- With hair flying, Mac Wilkins prepares to throw the discus for a new world record of 70.87 meters (232 feet 6 inches) at the National Bicentennial Invitational track and field meet in San Jose (California). The former University of Oregon athlete, now competing for the Pacific Coast Club, broke his own week-old world record of 69.14 (226-11). The previous Mark of 69:08 (226-8) was set by teammate John Powell in 1975.
