TORCHBEARERS -- President Ronald Reagan looks on as former Olympic gymnast Kurt Thomas (right) transfers the light from his torch to that of Special Olympics athlete Charlotte Pearson during a ceremony at the White House in Washington. The flame, which arrived in New York City from Greece, was passing through the nation's capital during a 14,500-kilometer relay through 33 states. Its final destination is Los Angeles (California) Memorial Coliseum where it will burn during the 1984 Olympic Games which begin July 28.
