WHITE HOUSE CALLING -- U.S. Astronaut Virgil I. Grissom receives a congratulatory radio-telephone call on board the carrier USS Randolph from President Kennedy in the White House in Washington. The spaceman had just left the helicopter which recovered him from the Atlantic Ocean following his successful suborbital flight from Cape Canaveral, Florida July 21. Like millions of other Americans, Mr. Kennedy had watched the progress of the flight on television. He expressed "great pleasure and satisfaction" over its success. (61-10012)
