REPORT TO THE NATION -- President Ronald Reagan delivers his first State of the Union address before a Joint Session of the Congress at the Capitol in Washington. He cited accomplishments in the first year of his Administration and urged continued support for programs to reduce the growth in Federal Government spending and regulatory activity, to return more power and resources to state and local governments, to stimulate private savings and investment, and to "restore the margin of military safety that insures peace." The speech was carried live on nationwide television and radio.
