

C8558F1

INTERNATIONAL GREETING -- United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim (right foreground) is welcomed by President Jimmy Carter at the White House in Washington. The two leaders met to discuss political, economic and humanitarian topics and later attended a working luncheon. Mr. Carter said he was "greatly impressed" with the Secretary General's ability "to search out common ground on which future agreements might be reached" in the Mideast, Cyprus and Southern Africa. At left are Mrs. Waldheim and Mrs. Carter, and at right are Secretary of State and Mrs. Cyrus Vance.

(77-1849)

