

ELECTIONS IN THE U.S., 1960

Voter education is an important part of the democratic process. One of the most influential non-partisan groups operating in this field is the League of Women Voters, largest women's organization whose sole aim is to stimulate interest in informed voting and good government. Branches study local, state and national issues, then support measures they consider in the best public interest. These League members in Minnesota meet to discuss the posters and literature they have produced and will distribute in a campaign to effect revision of the state constitution.
