

C55AF5

United States Department of State
Periodicals Service Section, IW, OII

NR-587

How the President of the United States Makes Decisions
2. The decisions of the President of the United States frequently represent the combined judgments of himself and his group of official advisers. Here President Truman is shown in conference with General George C. Marshall, the Secretary of Defense; Paul Hoffman, former Administrator of the Economic Cooperation Administration; and W. Averell Harriman, Special Assistant to Mr. Truman on foreign affairs.

C551975

A-4 (2) - El Presidente Truman conferenciando con el general George C. Marshall, Secretario de Defensa; Paul Hoffman, ex-director de la Administración de Cooperación Económica; y W. Averell Harriman, asesor especial del Presidente en asuntos exteriores.

