

English Summary

This End of Degree Project describes the process used to build the Superior Polytechnic School Erasmus Web Site. Explains all existing theoretical basis behind modern web applications and talks about technologies and open source software used to implement one. Also describes in detail the requirements specification phases, design and development of the application. Finally exposes a set of conclusions regarding the project done and gives a list of recommendations to improve the product created.