Syngman Rhee (right), President of the Republic of Korea, reads the citation accompanying the Republic's Order of Military Merit, which he presented to General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, Commanding General for the unified United Nations forces, in a recent ceremony in the national capitol building in Seoul. John J. Muccio, United States Ambassador to the Republic of Korea, is at the extreme left, behind General MacArthur.

Speaking of the presentation, General MacArthur declared, in part: "The President has done me too much personal honor. It was the men of my command who won this great honor."
