

JUN. 27 1962

SATELLITES RECORDS VITAL TONES FOR WEATHERMEN

Technicians at the Meteorological Satellite Activities headquarters at Suitland, Maryland, near Washington, process cloud photographs taken by Tiros satellites. At top, enlargements of the photos are assembled. At bottom, experts draw the cloud patterns -- called a nephanalysis -- over a map by using photos that have been matched together.

(Photo 62-2737. Accompanies Feature F-62-154.)

SCIENCE - ARTIFICIAL SATELLITE: TIROS