

APOLLO-10 MASCOT -- Vice President Spiro Agnew shares a laugh with Apollo-10 astronauts Gene Cernan (left) and Tom Stafford (right) as he receives a model of "Snoopy," the flight mascot. Mr. Agnew visited the crew quarters at Cape Kennedy in Florida on May 17, the day before the spacemen were launched toward the Moon. "Snoopy" is the name of a popular American cartoon strip dog and the nickname of the Apollo-10 lunar module. The Vice President is the chairman of the National Aeronautics and Space Council.
