UNITED FIRST LADIES — The first ladies of 29 countries join first lady Nancy Reagan (center) for a group portrait during "The First Ladies Conference on Drug Abuse" at the United Nations in New York City. Mrs. Reagan told them that drug abuse is "truly an international threat, engulfing the innocent and unaware in its path, without regard to national origin, race or religion. It crosses all boundaries." The conference was the second hosted by Mrs. Reagan to raise awareness about the growing threat that narcotics trafficking and abuse pose to the world's adolescents. The one-day gathering was held in conjunction with the United Nations' 40th anniversary. (85-3572-C)
